FORTY NINE COACHES

NORMAN PARKER (RED) STRADER

Head Coach

Norman Parker (Red) Strader has come "home" to San Francisco as head coach of the 49ers of the National Football League.

The beautiful and expansive San Francisco Bay Area, now holding a population of more than 3,000,000, has been Strader's principal residence and base of operations ever since he enrolled at St. Mary's College in the fall of 1922.

St. Mary's then was located in the "Old Brickpile" in downtown Oakland, the move to the present sumptuous quarters at suburban Moraga not being made until 1928. And Red, as St. Mary's first All-American football player—he was named at fullback on Walter Camp's third team in 1924—had a major role in the development of the Galloping Gaels as a national gridiron power in the years prior to World War II.

A native of Newton, N.J., Red was taken by his parents to a farm in Ceres, Calif., about 90 miles southeast of San Francisco, when he was only six months old. His youth in Ceres was that of every farm boy—he milked cows, pitched hay and all the other innumerable chores of a dairy ranch.

One of the turning points of Red's life came when he entered high school in nearby Modesto and his parents hired a man to replace him on the farm. This gave Red not only a chance to continue his education but also to participate in football and baseball.

In the autumn of 1922, he entered St. Mary's College on an athletic scholarship, mainly because of his baseball ability as a catcher. Weighing less than 150 pounds, he was not counted on for football. But he surprised head coach Edward P. (Slip) Madigan and everyone else by winning the starting fullback berth on the Galloping Gael varsity.

Red's popularity with his teammates was so great that they named him captain of the Gael squad in 1924, his junior year. In that season he gained 1,421 yards from scrimmage, a mark that has never been surpassed at St. Mary's. He also starred in St. Mary's tremendous 14-10 upset victory over mighty Southern California.

After graduating in the spring of 1926, Red signed with the Cleveland Indians. He was farmed out to Hollywood in the Pacific Coast League, then to Wheeling, W.Va. During his professional baseball career he also played professional football with the Chicago Cardinals and the Chicago Bulls.

In 1928, Red was named football, basketball and baseball coach at Regis College, Denver. He returned to St. Mary's in 1932 as head freshman coach and chief assistant to Madigan.

After Madigan's resignation, Red assumed the top gridiron duties at St. Mary's in 1940, then accepted a Navy commission in 1942. After service at Whidby Island, Camp Berry and Sampson, he was discharged in late 1945 with the rank of lieutenant commander.

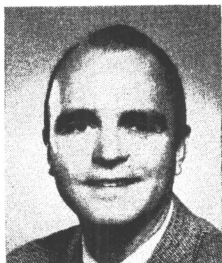

In 1946, Red joined the New York Yankees of the new All-American Football Conference as backfield coach. He became head coach in 1948 and continued with the club when it became the Yanks of the National Football League in 1950.

When the 49ers established a nationwide, full scale scouting system in 1952, they asked Red to take charge. His voluminous reports, based on interviews gained during 25,000 miles of travel, are still showing results. In 1953-54 he was chief 49er game scout. At the same time he was an executive with an Oakland construction firm.

Red and his wife, Helen, reside in Berkeley.

JOHN PHILIP (PHIL) BENGTONSON

Assistant Coach

An All-America tackle at Minnesota during the golden days of the Bernie Bierman regime, Phil Bengtson, a native of St. Paul, received his coaching experience at Missouri and Stanford before joining the 49er staff in 1951. He was with Don Faurot at Missouri until he came west with Clark Shaughnessy in 1940 as line coach of Stanford's famed "Cinderella" team. After Navy service in World War II, including duty aboard aircraft carriers in the Pacific, Phil returned to Stanford in 1946 as chief aide to Marchy Schwartz.

His 49er lines always have been among the strongest in pro football, particularly at the tackle positions.

He is of Swedish-Irish descent. Phil and Mrs. Bengtson reside in Menlo Park, Calif., with their four children—Jay, 12; Bobbie, 9; Betty, 7, and Brian, 5.

HOWARD (RED) HICKEY

Assistant Coach

After 14 years with the Los Angeles Rams as a player and coach, Red Hickey became a 49er last January—a 10-strike maneuver for the San Francisco club. A native of Clarksville, Ark., Red won All-Southwest Conference honors in football and basketball at the University of Arkansas. He was picked for the West team in the annual Shrine East-West classic at San Francisco in 1940.

Drafted by the Pittsburgh Steelers in 1941, Red played only one game with that club before being traded to the Rams (the latter franchise was in Cleveland at that time). After more than three years of Navy service, he rejoined the Rams in 1945 in time to help them capture the NFL title. He continued as a player through the 1948 season, then was named an assistant coach. He had a major role in the development of such pass-receiving stars as Elroy Hirsch, Tom Fears and Bob Boyd. Red and his wife, Cecilia, are now living in Hillsdale, Calif., with their sons—Michael, 9, and Patrick, 5.

FRANK C. (FRANKIE) ALBERT

Assistant Coach

One of Red Strader's first actions as head coach of the 49ers was to sign Frankie Albert as a backfield tutor. The little southpaw from Glendale, Calif., needs no introduction to football fans. He helped revolutionize modern football in 1940 when he T-quarterbacked Stanford to an undefeated season and a Rose Bowl victory over Nebraska. He was unanimous All-America quarterback in both 1940 and 1941.

After Navy duty, he became one of the "Original 49ers" in 1946 and embarked on a thrilling and colorful professional career. In 1948 Sport Magazine named him "Player of the Year" in football after he established a still unbroken record of 29 touchdown passes.

Following the 1952 season, Frankie retired as a 49er but played one season in Canada. He returned to the 49ers last year as a radio-television commentator. He and his wife, Marty, reside in Palo Alto, Calif., with their three daughters.

MARK C. DUNCAN

Assistant Coach

Vacationing in the San Francisco area in mid-June, Mark Duncan paid a friendly call to the 49er office. Before he left, he had accepted a job on the 49er coaching staff. Born in Denver, Duncan was an All-Rocky Mountain Conference guard at the University of Denver in 1939-40. He coached one season at Colorado College, then returned to Denver as an assistant. He was acting head coach before joining the Army in 1944.

In 1947, Mark became assistant football and basketball coach and head baseball mentor at Colorado A&M at Fort Collins, Colorado. He and his wife, Alice, have a daughter, Gail, 13, and a son, Scott, 8.

*Soltau led NFL in scoring in 1952 with 94 points and again in 1953 with 114 points. Despite missing the first five games of 1954, he still finished fourth with 76 points.

**Beals led the All-America Conference in 1949 with 73 points and was that league's all-time scoring leader with a total of 278.

RUSHING

	Attempts	Yds. Gain	Avg.	TD's
*Joe Perry (1948-54)	975	5517	5.7	52
John Strzykalski (1946-52)	662	3415	5.2	19

Hugh McElhenny (1952-54)	274	1702	6.2	16
Joe Arenas (1951-54)	161	743	4.6	9

*If only NFL years are counted (1950 through 1954) Perry has gained 4116 yards on 783 attempts for a 5.3 average. This makes him the third best rusher in NFL history. Steve Van Buren gained 5860 yards in eight years with Philadelphia, while Tony Canadeo of Green Bay rolled up 4197 yards in 11 seasons. Over-all, Perry has only 343 yards to go to break Van Buren's all-time mark. His two seasons in the All-America Conference, 1948-49, are not counted in NFL records.

PASSING

	No. Passes	Comp.	Yds. Gain	TD's	Int.
Frank Albert (1946-52)	1564	831	10,795	115	98
Y. A. Tittle (1951-54)	876	488	6,541	48	46

Albert established the all-time professional record of 29 touchdown passes in 1948 in the All-America Conference. The NFL record is 28, set by Sid Luckman of the Chicago Bears in 1943.

Tittle was with Baltimore for three seasons—1948-49-50. His all-time record is: 1859 passes attempted, 958 completed for 13,156 yards and 86 touchdowns. He has had 92 aeriads intercepted.

In passing efficiency, Tittle ranks third in all-time NFL ratings with 55 per cent of his tosses completed. Albert is fifth with 52.6 per cent.
